What are Cookies and similar technologies?

Cookies are small, often encrypted files of letters and numbers that are stored in browser directories or the hard drive of your computer or electronic device when you visit the website or use applications. The cookies are used to make websites and applications work more efficiently and perform certain functions, e.g., store information about your preferences, provide statistical information to us. This helps us to give you better experience when you browse, and also helps us to make our website and applications better for you.

In this Cookies Policy, we've explained how and why we use cookies, and what each of them do.

FINCI uses following types of cookies:

- session cookies- temporary cookies deleted when you close your browser.
- persistent cookies- persistent cookies remain on your device until you erase them or they expire.
- first-party cookies- cookies stored directly by our website. It allows us to collect analytics data, remember language settings, and perform other useful functions that help provide a good user experience.

- third-party cookies- cookies provided by third parties, such as Google, to track website activity such as session duration, pages per session, bounce rate etc. of individuals using the webpage, along with the information on the source of the traffic.

You can see each cookie we use and our reasons for using them below.
